On Sunday, March 8, 2009, when you turn your clocks ahead an hour for daylight saving time, get prepared for spring by doing a few things that could save you time during a disaster or emergency situation, when every second counts.

The American Red Cross recommends that when you change your clocks, you do the following:

- Check the smoke alarms in your home and at work. Don't forget to check your carbon monoxide detectors as well. All smoke alarms should be tested once a month and their batteries replaced annually.

- Update the emergency contact information in your family communications plan. Choose an out-of-area emergency contact that each person in your family can call if he/she becomes separated during a disaster situation.

- Make sure that your disaster supplies kit still includes at least a three-day supply of non-perishable food items and water (one gallon per person per day), a flashlight, a battery-powered or crank radio, can opener, first aid kit, copies of important documents, and special items such as medications, diapers, and infant formula. Be sure to check your disaster supplies kit for expired food items and freshen staples such as water, food and batteries. If there have been changes in prescriptions or dietary needs, add new foods and medications as needed.

Currently the United States is in the midst of one of the largest food recalls in American history. As Americans dig through their cabinets and refrigerators to remove potentially contaminated food associated with the recent peanut recall, we would like to remind you to open and check their Emergency Preparedness Kits to remove any potentially harmful items from these also.

Because peanut products are often recommended as staples in Emergency Preparedness Kits due to their long shelf life and because they are a good source of protein, we encourage all kit owners to look at their kits to ensure food products are not on the peanut recall list. Please keep in mind that the peanut product recall extends beyond peanut-flavored products. The following are some examples of foods also included in the recall that may contain peanuts: granola, snack bars, crackers, cereal, trail mix, cookies, noodles and dog treats

A full list of recalled peanut products can be found on the Food and Drug Administration’s Web site http://www.accessdata.fda.gov/scripts/peanutbutterrecall/index.cfm along with recommendations about what individuals should do with recalled items.

In addition to checking for peanut-related items, please be sure to check for other items in your kit that may have expired, including medications, food and pet food, water, and other recalled items. The U.S. government provides information on unsafe, hazardous, or defective products ranging from consumer products, food, medicine, and cosmetics at www.recalls.gov.

Ensuring family and neighbors are prepared is an essential step in helping communities during and after an emergency. Families should have an Emergency Preparedness Kit in all locations that are frequented often, including homes, offices, schools, cars and day care facilities. These kits should hold a variety of essential items that are needed during a disaster, such as a flashlight, radio, cash, clothing, protective equipment, medicines, and of course food and water. For a complete list of Emergency Preparedness Kit recommended items, please visit http://www.fema.gov/plan/prepare/supplykit.shtm.
Well, it seems we’re almost out of the deep freeze. In only a couple of weeks we will start to see budding trees and tulip shoots - sure signs of spring!

February started with a presentation to the Dietitians of Western New York at a meeting held at Meals on Wheels. That day a representative from the American Dietetic Association also spoke to the group about nutrition during emergencies. It was an interesting exchange during which I learned a number of new things and thought how wonderful it is that even dietitians think Chef Boyardee’s canned ravioli are an acceptable source of calories during an emergency! I returned to Meals on Wheels later in the month to speak to their staff about emergency preparedness. As individuals who care for others on a daily basis by providing food and companionship, they understand the need to be prepared in their own homes so they can continue to serve those who depend on Meals on Wheels during an emergency.

Special thanks to Ben Gair, Chief Executive Officer of Meals on Wheels, for recognizing the importance of home preparedness and inviting me into their wonderful organization.

I would also thank the Hazelwood Block Club, Timon Towers Senior Apartments, Trinity Towers Senior Apartments, and the children involved in the “Neighbors Helping Neighbors” program at MLK School for attending presentations this month.

I would also like to acknowledge and thank City of Buffalo CERT for their assistance while taping two of our programs at the University at Buffalo’s Digital Access Lab this month. On February 13th Border Community SERVICE had the opportunity to record our “Ready America” program, as well as an introduction to “Map Your Neighborhood.” Hopefully, these recordings will be available on our website shortly.

Finally, the next City of Buffalo CERT meeting will be held from 6PM to 8PM on Tuesday, March 10th in Room 101 of the Main Building of Medaille College (City) located at 18 Agassiz Circle. Our guest speaker, Gregg Blosat, will present on the topic of “Threat Analysis for Communities.” I encourage you to take advantage of this opportunity. Space may be limited so please call me at 851-4299 to RSVP for this event.
